Behavioural Experiments in Health network

THE CHOICE INSTITUTE
School of Pharmacy

Call for Papers
11th Workshop in Behavioral and Experimental Health Economics
Seattle, Washington, December 7-8, 2026

The Comparative Health Outcomes, Policy and Economics (CHOICE) Institute at University of Washington is pleased to host the 11th Workshop in Behavioral and Experimental Health Economics in Seattle, Washington, on December 7th and 8th, 2026. The workshop brings together economists and behavioral scientists who apply behavioral economics insights and experimental methods to study health-related decision making. The workshop is part of the activities of the Behavioral Experiments in Health Network.

We welcome submissions on all topics related to economic aspects of health-related decision making (e.g., preferences, incentives, institutions) using behavioral and experimental economics approaches. These may include experimental methods (online, laboratory, or field experiments), quasi-experimental designs, observational studies, or theoretical work that advances our understanding of behavioral factors in health economics. We expect to have both long presentations (about 30 minutes) and lightening talks (5 minutes) that will be accompanied by a poster presentation.

Keynote speaker
Kevin Volpp, MD PhD (University of Pennsylvania)

Submissions
We welcome submissions of full papers or extended abstracts. Preference will be given to full-paper submissions. Please submit at the link below by the deadline of August 31, 2026:

Submission Link

Authors will be notified regarding the acceptance of their paper by early October 2026.

There are no registration costs to attend the conference. All participants will need to cover their own travel expenses. Participation is subject to availability beyond participants with accepted presentations or posters.

Organizing Committee
Anirban Basu (University of Washington)
Jing Li (University of Washington)
Daniel Wiesen (University of Cologne)

Scientific Committee
Arthur E. Attema (Erasmus University Rotterdam)
Anirban Basu (University of Washington)
John Cawley (Syracuse University)
Matteo M. Galizzi (London School of Economics)
Glenn W. Harrison (Georgia State University)
Jing Li (University of Washington)
Manasvini Singh (Carnegie Mellon University)
Daniel Wiesen (University of Cologne)

If you have any questions about the Call for Papers or the event, please contact Jing Li: jli0321@uw.edu.

Please share this call for papers widely. We look forward to receiving your submissions to the 11th Workshop in Behavioral and Experimental Health Economics.